Department Mission

Consistent with the Bethel College mission statement, the Department of History and Contemporary Society is committed to developing a community of learners dedicated building lives of commitment for leadership in the Church and the world.

Applied Politics

The Applied Politics degree offers a hands-on approach not found in most political science programs. The difference is experiential. Students don't just read about the political process – they participate in it through internships and other opportunities to network and dialogue with key political constituents. Students will be prepared to analyze political issues from various perspectives and to create effective political campaigns.

The Applied Politics major has two critical points of emphasis. The first is academics. Students will be introduced to the basics of developing and implementing successful political campaigns and will study U.S. History and U.S. government at the Federal, state and local levels. The second emphasis is on internships. Successful students must move beyond the classroom and apply what they are learning in a “real world” environment. Students will have three internships obtaining a variety of experiences to broaden their professional networks.

Criminal Justice Major

The Criminal Justice Major teaches students the processes and procedure for the American criminal justice system in the areas of Law Enforcement, Courts, Corrections, and Juvenile Justice through classroom instruction and practical experience. In keeping with the mission of Bethel College, the criminal justice major also is dedicated to helping students develop a Christian world view in working within the criminal justice system through discussion of work ethics and justice.

The following is a list of careers in the field of Criminal Justice. The list is by no means exhaustive, and many more possibilities for careers and employment exist: police officer, sheriff's deputy, probation officer, corrections officer, private investigator, criminalist, forensic investigator, forensics science technician, and paralegal.

History Major

At Bethel College we assist students of history in developing a “world Christian view”. Our history majors attain a greater understanding of the patterns along with the causes and effects of human behavior. This is accomplished through developing core skills: critical thinking, communication, research, and creativity

History and social science majors tend to be prepared for a broad variety of careers. These include the following: journalist/editorial assistant/news analyst/copywriter, museum curator/archivist/ historical preservationist, politics/ foreign service/intelligence analyst, library science/ records manager/ researcher/ grant writer, national parks ranger, urban planning and development

For students planning to pursue graduate studies the history major provides a strong foundation for seminary, law school, and a variety of other graduate programs.

Sociology Major

Compassion and mission are two words that capture the essence of why students major in sociology at Bethel College. They want to serve God with a compassionate heart towards a broken world. Sociology courses help develop a Christian as well as a social scientific perspective on culture and society. The department offers a variety of sociology courses, as well as a specialization in family studies. Bethel graduates are readily accepted into graduate programs in areas like counseling and social work.

Because sociology is a liberal arts major, it provides broad preparation and flexibility in choice of careers. Typical areas where Bethel students find employment are juvenile probation, adoption services, orphanages, social service agencies, geriatrics, human resources, social ministries, international relief, and missions
